What's New

The safety of our customers and employees is a top priority. All of our mechanics are required to complete OSHA training. To support our effort in maintaining a safe work environment, Kencor has established a new position titled Safety Officer. Joe McNulty (pictured right) will head this position, while continuing his role of Service Supervisor. His duties will include: developing & executing our health & safety program, monitor & evaluate the incident rate, prepare & enforce policies, conduct training, and investigate incidents. Our goal is to keep everyone safe.

Congratulations!

Way to go Kencor for earning the ABC Silver STEP Award. ABC's Safety Training Evaluation Process was established in 1989 by contractors, for contractors. Safety processes and policies are reviewed using 20 key components. The goal is for companies to initiate and improve safety programs by reducing accident rates on jobs.

"Customer service is the experience we deliver to our customer. It's the promise we keep to the customer. It's how we follow through for the customer. It's how we make them feel when they do business with us." Shep Hyken
