What's New

As we continue on our journey of striving to provide excellent service, we are excited to be working on a new project. When our mechanics are servicing your equipment, they will be gathering important data, such as the manufacturer, model, and serial number. Additionally, they will be obtaining information specific to your elevator, for example, stops, speed, drive application, and other items that are unique to your location. Storing this information in our database will enable us to provide estimates, material ordering and troubleshooting at a much faster rate. This will decrease the down time of your equipment, part replacement and overall response time to any service needs.

"In every day, there are 1,440 minutes. That means we have 1,440 daily opportunities to make a positive impact"

-Les Brown

Every three days elevators carry the equivalent of the entire Earth's population.
